Comment: One of my friend who lived in Bangalore didn't know Kannada,he contacted police,they couldn't understand what he was speaking,they kept my friend waiting for another 10 mins on call and another guy came on line,he spoke in Hindi.The thing is,the police were not ignorant,they were trying to make communication easy,as they couldn't understand Hindi they tried to search for operator who knew Hindi

As for this Spanish guy's incident,the exaggeration of blatant racism is totally false. Due to some language barrier,both the side faced problem in communicating and understanding.

Comment: *In their clarification, the Bengaluru police confirmed that no call from Abrielle was registered at the time of the burglary. They explained that when he first called the helpline at 9:17 AM, the call was disconnected without conversation. A second call, placed two minutes later, provided limited information, and the helpline operator responded in Kannada, which led to another disconnection*.

So no one thought of verifying the fucking post? Such a stupid sub. "Let's blame
